PRESS RELEASE

Quarter Master® Products Found In Victory Lane Nationwide

Whether it be NASCAR, the Grand-Am Rolex Sports Car Series, Late Models or any other motorsports division, Quarter Master® products are found in winning race cars nationwide

With the sheer mass of racers and teams that utilize Quarter Master® racing clutches and driveline products, it is no surprise that victory lanes across the country have recently been filled with Quarter Master® products. Quarter Master® specializes in products for almost every type of motorsports, and top competitors are taking advantage of the performance benefits.

Most recently, Quarter Master® flexed its muscles in the 2010 Brickyard 400 at the legendary Indianapolis Motor Speedway in Indianapolis, Indiana. The top four finishers in the illustrious NASCAR event were utilizing cutting-edge Quarter Master® technology and included event winner Jamie McMurray and second through fourth place finishers Kevin Harvick, Greg Biffle and Clint Bowyer. Among the Quarter Master® components utilized by the front running teams were the brand new Reverse Mount Bellhousing Kit and the new 8-Leg Optimum-V Clutch.

While Sprint Cup drivers were making NASCAR history with Quarter Master® products in Indiana, across the country in New Jersey, the SpeedSource Mazda RX-8 team was breaking records, as well. The team made an unprecedented podium sweep in the GT-Class in Grand-Am Rolex Sports Car Series action at New Jersey Motorsports Park in Millville, New Jersey. Co-drivers Jonathan Bomarito and Sylvain Tremblay topped the action by taking the win while co-drivers John Edwards and Adam Christodoulou claimed the runner-up spot for the team. Emil Assentato and Jeff Segal rounded out the podium with their third place finish. The SpeedSource team uses only Quarter Master® clutches in all of their race cars to guarantee top of the line performance.

With national news being made, Quarter Master® customers also wreaked havoc on the regional scene in Late Model competition. ACT Late Model Series competitor Joey Polewarczyk, Jr. from Hudson, New Hampshire, used Quarter Master® products to scorch the asphalt at Beech Ridge Motor Speedway in Scarborough, Maine, en route to giving Ford its first win with the tour. Polewarczyk, Jr. controlled the race and led over half of the event's laps before taking the win.

Dirt Late Model racing was not exempt from Quarter Master® dominance over the course of the last week. Bart Hartman earned a special event win at Florence Speedway in Union, Kentucky, while Chris Madden recorded a Southern Nationals Series win at Rome Speedway in Rome, Georgia.

Quarter Master® continues to push the envelope for producing unmatched, high performance products for circle track racers, as well as continuing to prepare for a big return to the drag racing world in the near future. It's clear to see that if you want to make sure you are getting winning performance from your driveline products, you need to join the Quarter Master® team today!
