

RHS® Offers Premium Valve Train Kits & Components

With joint R&D efforts, RHS® & COMP Cams® offer the ideal “one-two punch” of advanced cylinder head technology with premium valve train components

Many performance experts will tell you that cylinder heads are only as good as the supporting valve train components matched to them. But what if the cylinder heads and valve train parts were designed together, with each maximizing the horsepower potential of the other? Airflow engineers at RHS® have joined forces with valve train technology leader, COMP Cams®, to discover the optimal cylinder head/valve train combination for each performance application that RHS® serves.

By combining R&D efforts, each product innovation from RHS® is designed with an ideal valve train combination to match. In doing so, racers and street enthusiasts alike will be given maximum horsepower and torque for each specific application – tested rigorously through advanced dyno and Spintron® testing techniques in the COMP Performance Group™ R&D center in Memphis, TN. And in addition to the cylinder head assemblies, RHS® now offers a turn-key solution for replacing valve train components via race-proven “Cylinder Head Assembly Kits.” Both the assemblies and kits are available on the RHS® website at www.racingheadservice.com.
